Miss Frances McInerly is home for a while, having been helping Mrs. Ed Hanson most of the summer.

Miss Elsie McInerly is away again, helping Mrs. Glen Field.

Threshing in this district has been at a standstill for the last 17 days. At times the weather cleared up enough to entice the threshers to get ready for action, only to have it turn wet just when they had started operations, and at time of writing it looks as though there will be no more threshing till the end of September or the 1st of October, unless as the weather forecast speaks of rain and storms up till the 27 and 28 of the month—here's hoping the forecast is wrong—like it has been so often, when rain was prophesied to be a dust storm instead. Some outfits are still keeping their crews while others have let them go, which is bad for all concerned, especially when of such long duration.

Mrs. E. Bucher, formerly Mrs. Cuff, who used to reside in these parts, and now of Breton, Northern Alberta, writing under date of Sept. stated that they had had snow and rain at that time. They had no vegetables as a result of the frost early in August. This goes to prove that distant parts are not always the best.

The yields of wheat already threshed in this district vary greatly. Some fields have gone 20 bus, to the acre, others from (Continued on page 4)

News Bulletin

The Alberta Wheat Pool announces that commencing Oct. 1st, what placed in the 1934-35 pool will receive an initial payment based on No. 1 Northern, Vancouver, of 50c a bushel. The pooling of wheat of course is entirely optional with the grower. Those desirous of placing wheat in this pool should see the Pool Elevator agent.

The Provincial Government received payment of $43,428 from the Alberta Wheat Pool this being the annual instalment of principal and interest due this month on account of the 1929 Pool overpayment. The Pool is living up to its obligations with the Government in a credible manner.

The three prairie Wheat Pools will co-operate in presenting a series of 13 radio talks during the fall months, the first to be given on Oct. 3 when Louis Brionette, president of Saskatchewan Wheat Pool will be the speaker. These talks will be given on Wed. evenings from 8.15 to 8.30 Mountain Time. The radio stations being C.J.C.A., Edmonton Journal, and C.F.C.N., Voice of the Prairie, Calgary.

The Senior Wheat Clubs, sponsored by the Alberta Wheat Pool working in co-operation with the Provincial Department of Agriculture, have enjoyed a very successful year for the most part, even though drought and bad weather handicapped clubs in a large number of districts.

Altar Society Card Party Series Away to a Good Start

A very pleasant evening was spent by a number of bridge and whist enthusiasts at the Altar Society card party, held last night. Following are the results:

Bridge — Ladies' first, Miss Irene Hesketh, one Mrs. Lewendon; Gent's first R. H. Bishop, C. G. Taylor.

Whist — Ladies' first Miss Ruby Hall, one Mrs. Johnson; Gent's first Dan Vlado, one Cleto Duncan.

These card parties will be held the third Wednesday in each month during the winter. The score of each player will be recorded and at the end of the series a prize will be awarded to the lady and gentleman with the most points. In addition to this the usual prizes will be awarded to the winners after each event.

If for any reason you have to miss, one or more of these parties you are asked to send a substitute, who will play in your place and you will be credited with his score.

Judging from the way this series started off, it looks as though this will be the source of many enjoyable evenings this winter. The next will be held on Wed. Oct. 17th.

The Altar Society wish to thank all those who in any way helped towards making this event a success, especially those around the town who loaned their card tables, chairs, etc.

Stopovers Allowed After October 1st

Change in conditions under which the railways will sell to call thirty-day round-trip tickets will, in future, allow stopovers enroute, it was stated by Mr. G. Taylor, Canadian Pacific Agent at Arrowwood today.

Previously Mr. Taylor explained, a passenger buying a ticket with a thirty-day limit for example, to Winnipeg was required to use ticket for continuous passage to and from Winnipeg only. After Oct. 1st a similar ticket, without further cost or arrangement, will permit the passenger to stop at any point going or returning, between the starting point and destination, within limit.

See Lillian Harvey and Lew Ayres in "My Weakness" at the Arrowwood Theatre tonight. Prices, 35c, 25c and 15c.

A FURTHER STEP on the Road to Recovery

A Statement by the Prime Minister of Canada

THE Dominion of Canada will offer for public subscription within the next few days the 1934 Refunding Loan. It is an undertaking of such significance to every citizen that I think it fitting to present this brief explanation of its close relation to the welfare and continued progress of our country.

The 1934 Loan is not an incidental effort. It is a part and an essential part of the great debt conversion programme in which Canada has been engaged since 1931, and by which we are refunding at maturity the large sums borrowed for wartime purposes. The national importance of the programme—and of the 1934 Loan as part of it—cannot be over emphasized. It is important from three aspects: 1—National Credit; 2—National Economy; 3—National Recovery.

1. National Credit

National credit means to a nation what an honest reputation means to a man. Its maintenance is a primary essential and necessitates that each obligation be met, fully and promptly, as it comes due. Our debt conversion programme is then, in the first instance, our method of meeting our obligations and thus maintaining our credit.

By this programme Canada has already refunded $458,000,000 of maturing wartime debt, and completion of the 1934 Loan will bring the refunded total to over one billion dollars. As a result, Canada's credit stands notably high, both at home and in the great money markets of the world.

Striking evidence of our high credit standing was given within the last few months when Canada secured immediate over-subscription of a long-term loan in London at a price to yield the investor less than 3 1/2% and, in New York, obtained a one-year loan of $50,000,000 bearing interest at 2 per cent. And there is equally striking evidence at the present moment in the fact that every internal issue of Dominion of Canada Bonds now outstanding is selling today at substantially above its issue price. The twelve-year 4 1/2% Bonds of the 1933 Refunding Loan, issued at 96 1/2, are now selling at 104 to yield approximately 3 1/2%.

2. National Economy

The debt conversion programme, in the second place, is providing substantial savings in public interest charges. The debt which we are refunding was incurred with interest rates at artificially high wartime levels. Refunding is now being accomplished with interest rates throughout the world moving steadily downward toward more normal levels—an encouraging world movement which is essential to business recovery. By refunding under these conditions Canada has already obtained a reduction of the previous interest charges amounting to more than $9,000,000 per annum, and completion of the 1934 Loan will provide a further saving of over $5,000,000 per annum.

The annual saving of over $14,000,000 thus secured has a direct cash benefit to every taxpayer. This saving has much more than offset the interest charges on the debt which has been incurred to meet the extraordinary burden of unemployment relief. It has, to a considerable extent, offset the heavy burdens which the depression period has imposed with respect to railway and other current requirements. It will also pave the way to tax reductions with the return to better times.

3. National Recovery

The debt conversion which Canada has achieved since 1931, by thus maintaining national credit and securing national economy, has been a major factor in our progress toward business recovery.

A year ago, preliminary to the 1933 Refunding Loan, I took occasion to express the belief that Canada had passed the low point of depression and was definitely upon the road to recovery. Today, our progress toward recovery is a matter of established fact. Since the low point of February 1933, the trend of business has been moving steadily upward in an improvement so marked and so consistently sustained that we need no longer doubt its reality.

The facts of business recovery are written beyond dispute in our statistical records. The most significant indices relate to physical volume of business, industrial production, carloadings, electric power production, employment and prices. Here is the record in each case:

	Percentage Increase
Physical volume of business.....	13.5%
Industrial Production.....	15.1%
Carloadings.....	10.3%
Electric Power Production.....	12.4%
Employment.....	14.7%
Wholesale Prices.....	4.9%
Farm Products Prices.....	7.7%

In the case of carloadings, employment and prices, the latest figures available are those for August; in other cases, those for July.

Our external trade figures are equally encouraging. During the first eight months of the present year, exports of Canadian products increased approximately $90,000,000, or 32.7% over the same period last year. The corresponding increase for imports has been slightly under $95,000,000, or 38.2%.

A Further Step

Anyone who reflects upon these three aspects of credit, economy and recovery will at once appreciate that the debt conversion programme is a vitally important step to every Canadian and that, consequently, the success of the 1934 Loan is the personal concern of every man and woman in the Dominion.

The 1934 Loan is a further step in a great national undertaking; in more than a further step on the road to recovery. I know that I need not stress the attractiveness of the Loan as the soundest possible investment, for it will be universally recognized. I do, however, earnestly call upon my fellow Canadians to support this Loan to the limit of their abilities as an opportunity to promote our national welfare. I know of no way in which the individual citizen can render greater service to himself and to his country.

NOMICAL, TOO—LESS THAN 1/2 always be depended on to give you uniformly

"You see, he left the Hour-glass equally to you and old Joe Carr and he provided that in case either should die, the entire property passes to the other. It's a queer sort of way to devise property. For more'n ten years old Joe Carr has tried to make a good thing of the place but each year he's only got deeper in the red."

"What else? Doesn't he know his own mind?"

"Oh, he knows his business all right. There's not a better citizen south of the Palladians. . . .
Simon Burwell, first vice-president of the Drovers Bank in Cato, leaned back in his chair, spread his hands tip-toe and started at his visitor.
He took him in from head to foot and frankly liked what he saw. Then he studied an open letter on his desk.
"Your uncle was a good friend of mine," he said. "But he was very careless or unwise to make the will he did."

"What do you mean?" Gerald Keene straightened up in his chair and Simon Burwell grinned at him.
"Don't carry a chip on your shoulder, my boy. I'm not criticizing old Peter. Why, boy, I loved him. Your uncle lived many years in the West.
He and old Joe Carr were partners for years. It was quite natural that when Peter died he should leave the Hour-glass ranch to his partner, Joe Carr. But when he dragged you into the matter he only complicated matters. How long since you saw your uncle?"

"I never laid eyes on him in my life," said Keene. "He was my mother's brother and the family was widely separated. I happened to learn of the bequest quite accidentally. I had been . . . in business . . . in the Northwest and I happened to drop in at my old home. There I learned about the will so I got the letter from Judge France to you to identify myself. The old judge told me that you have always handled your father's business. That's so, isn't it, sir?"

"It has never kept me busy. I'm sorry to say," said Burwell. "There is no business worth speaking of.
You're the half owner of a big ranch that doesn't pay a dollar of dividends and won't. Have you seen your uncle's will?"

Burwell did not wait a reply. He went to a wall safe and came back with a slim document that he read meticulously, accenting every word.

If you're not mighty careful, you'll have your head pulled under."

"Huh. But I don't quite see. If old man Carr is loath to move, how pays it out? Where's it coming from?"

"I tried to tell you. God help you if you try to keep old Joe Carr's head above water. He'll only drown you both. But you'd better run out there yourself, Mr. Keene, and take a look at things."

"Thanks. I'm going to do exactly that."

Gerald Keene rose and took his hat. Simon Burwell got a glimpse of gray eyes that narrowed in the glass and of a mouth that was almost straight above a full lower lip. The knowing vice-president grinned a little.

"I think my visitor will go far," he muttered, "I never even asked him what his occupation is. . . .
Huh. . . . man used to selling boots but I don't learn much about a ranch. . . .
I never . . . Old Judge France evidently takes an interest in him. . . . And I'm sure that the estate will be settled. He rose and walked to the long window and watched his late caller as he left."

The other-hour later Gerald Keene plunged through the door of a hotel room, slammed the door and gripped the shoulder of a man who was sitting in a chair by the window watching the world spin past between the toes of his boots on the sill.

"Darn," he said, "you've a mean right up to our locks. I swear I don't see any answer to it. . . . His lean face and his eyes twinkled.
There was a gleam in his eyes that twinkled. Those twinkled. There was a difference. One was humor; the other was none. Some studied his friend for a brief moment.

"Shoot," he said. "I have old man Burwell my letter of introduction and told me all he knew about the Hour-glass ranch. It seems that by my uncle's will half the ranch is mine; the other half belongs to his old partner, Joe Carr. He lives on the Hour-glass with his daughter and has made a fat figure of it. If either of us dies, the other gets the entire ranch."

"What could he tell you about your uncle?" demanded Stone.

"Every little bit that he was a lovely old fellow and that he was mighty fond of Carr. Oh! He told me, too, that two men, Dustin and Goddard, in the past few years have bought up a lot of scrip and started a ranch next to the Hour-glass.
They call it the Broken Spur. Burwell says old man Carr thinks a lot of it and is convinced that Dustin and Goddard have been systematically buying up Hour-glass for years. . . .
Too bad about old man Carr's drinker, isn't it?"

"It sure is. You can reform anybody but a systematic drinker. Go on."

"That's all. Burwell said there's a regular feud between the two ranches that reached the status of a Civil War on pay-days. I reckon old man Carr's been shooting off his mouth too much about a drinker. Well, you know how it is. They say a lot more's they ever started to say.
Could you tell me anything?"

"A little. When you were over at the bank I hunted up a man I know.
You see, I used to work for the Lazzy M. in Nebraska. They were a member of the Stockmen's Association and that's a lucky bet in a cattle country. Just because Nebraska went crazy over Fries Silver's scheme, I saw his shingle. I went to see him while you were with Burwell. . . ."

"Well . . . go on . . ."
Stone thoughtfully rolled a cigarette and went on as though talking to himself.

"He's been known Joe Carr since he was a pup. He says that drunk or sober, old Carr is as straight as a lariat but that for some years he's been up against hard luck. You plain up against it. About three years ago a pony slammed him against a buckin'-post in a corral and busted him out of his skin. That's when he began to drink. I reckon.
It busted him up a good deal.
Not enough to keep him from ridin', but enough to make him two good eyes. He's got a fine manager now. One Frank Crews, but he's not can't make both ends met."

The Alberta honey crop of 1933 was almost twice as large as that of 1932 and was readily marketed at increased prices. As a result, owners of commercial apiaries in the southern part of the province report a fairly satisfactory year.

The American flag of 15 stars and 13 stripes was in official use for 23 years, from 1785 to 1818.

Carried Out Old Idea

Peter The Great First Thought Of Huge Russian Canal

Praise to whom praise is due—and most assuredly praise is due to the Russian engineer, Serge Xyk. Entrusted by the Soviet government with the gigantic task of linking the Baltic and the White sea by means of a canal, said to be the biggest in the world. It was in December, 1931, that operations started under the discouraging conditions. To begin with, an efficient staff had to be trained, recruited for the most part from young graduates with little but enthusiasm for the country.
Then there were the natural obstacles—floods, intense cold, difficulties of supplying the necessary building materials, food for the workers, etc. On top of this there were no skilled craftsmen to be found in the locality and a total insufficient number of unskilled workmen. Not the least remarkable of Xyk's achievements is the method by which convicts, to the number of about ten thousand, were converted into willing workers by promises of freedom if they faithfully performed their duties for the benefit of the country.
Many inspiring tales are told of the changing of hardened criminals to self-respecting citizens, who, abetted with a will to get the job completed in time—it was finished in nineteen months.

It is said that Peter the Great had such a canal in mind when he transferred the capital from Moscow to St. Petersburg. His idea was to utilize the two great lakes, Onega and Ladoga, for the purpose and this has now been done. On the Onega-White sea section sixteen dams had to be built, with 33 annex canals, 22 discharge basins, 19 locks, of which 13 had to be constructed in hard rock over a hundred feet below the level; while millions of cubic yards of rock had to be blasted and removed, and a million and a half tons were cut down and carted away.

Eastern and northeastern Indian tribes have a tradition of a descent from the sky as the beginning of human inhabitants on the earth; Indian peoples of the mountainous and plateau regions of the southwest believe their ancestors ascended from the underworld.

All passports bear a photograph of the holder, but there is one property authorized and issued to a Canadian without his photograph—it carries an engraved portrait clipped from a $10 Bank of Montreal bill. The holder's name is Sir Frederick Wilgeneral manager of the Bank of Montreal.

The circumstances under which Sir Frederick secured the bill and attached the engraving to his passport well known Canadian exercised the usual custom attributed to bankers by retaining the serial number in order that the bill might be replaced by a new note—Financial Post.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

LURES

Life would defeat us as we go by Yet, can cheer us, though she may try.

Though she forget the promises made,
Think, my dear, we yet be wholly betrayed?

For all his morning,
Of hope's bright gleams, You'll find glad morning She gets fair dreams.

She gave us laughter
And love's sweet cheer; Then, when she comes after We need not fear.

The young must perish
This soon endure, Bright hearts still cherish Till, bright, hygone Lures.

Bees As Messengers

German Beekeeper Finds Them Better Than Carrier Pigeons

A German beekeeper has found new use for his bees. They are no longer to be mere honey-gatherers and wax-builders, but messengers!
He has written messages on scraps of paper and fastened them to the backs of bees. The bees have quickly brought them back to the hive, and never has a bee failed to deliver the message. The beekeeper, Herr Berthold Guhler, says bees are less likely than pigeons to fall into the wrong hands. something else again. Once a man has Found in the woods from New Brunswick to Manitoba, the blue cobweb, a poisonous plant of the bar-is extremely bitter to the taste and is hardly likely to be eaten, except by children tempted by the attractive appearance of the berry-like seeds.

RE THE RURAL TELEPHONE

Last week, in a conversation we had with Mr. Green, Manager of the Vulcan Telephone Exchange, it was pointed out that the present patrons of the Alberta Government Telephone rural lines would soon have to choose between forming a mutual company among themselves, or, in the near future, doing without the phone. Mr. Green informed us that many such companies had been formed in the Province, and the number is increasing at the present time.

The procedure is for a number of subscribers along a line (not less than ten), who are paid up to date, to hold an organization meeting and form a mutual company then send for an official of the Government Telephone, who would outline a plan for the said subscribers so that they could form a company and take over the lines from the Alberta Government Telephones. We are informed that after buying poles, wire and other equipment, the pro rata share for each subscriber would be something like $20. The monthly phone bill, without long distance would be less than one dollar, probably between 80 and 90c.

It has been said that the telephone is a luxury. We'll admit it is a great convenience, but in many cases a necessity. Take for instance in the busy seasons of seedling and harvesting, when the unexpected repair is needed, by using our phone we are able to find out nearest neighbor who happens to be in town at the time and we get the repair brought close to our home in a short time. Or, perhaps the implement dealer has to send away for that particular piece, which would have meant a wasted trip had it been for the telephone. Many families in the country would think twice before deciding to let the phone go, especially for cases where medical attention is needed, when time means so much in the case of an accident or in prevention of sickness. But apart from the time and money saved, as pointed out above, would it not be doubtful economy to do without a service or necessity which at times for business purposes, in cases of repairs or accidents, has saved the subscriber more than enough to pay the phone bill for three or four months. When we can have this convenience by forming our own company and buy the equipment, etc., from the Government at less than half our present rate, it is hard to understand why more country people do not want the phone installed.

Talking of the phone as being a luxury, we might say, so is the gang plow, with a seed compared to the old foot-warmer or walking plow. We don't notice many preparing to go back to the old ancient method or style of plowing, so why progress backward, when it comes to deciding about digging without a proven convenience and money saver like the telephone. At less than half our present rate?
